We will ensure that the Institute’s environmental impact is minimised and all staff and students work together to achieve environmental best practice. We will take into account the environmental consequences of all our activities, including, but not restricted to, teaching, administration, maintenance and purchasing.

In keeping with this commitment we will:

- Incorporate environmental awareness into core business and promote our environmentally sound practices to the broader community
- Work to prevent pollution and minimise negative environmental impacts through the selection of appropriate materials, processes, equipment and services
- Practice responsible water, energy and materials management including waste minimisation, reuse and recycling
- Provide facilities incorporating environmentally sound principles
- Manage available resources (human, physical and financial) to meet or exceed the requirements set by environmental legislation, regulations and other requirements
- Implement the environmental management system achieving specific objectives, targets and responsibilities across the organisation consistent with international standards to maintain certification to ISO 14001:2004
- Identify opportunities for continual improvement and move towards best practice in environmental management.

Kevin Harris
Institute Director
November 2013